ABOUT IAAE AND CEM

The Certified in Exhibition Management (CEM) designation was created in 1975 by the IAAE to provide a professional designation for individuals in the exhibitions and events industry. To earn the designation, participants must complete a nine-part program within three years. Recertification is required every three years after the initial program is completed to maintain the certification.

The CEM designation was formed to raise professional standards and is recognized throughout the industry as the premier mark of professional achievement.

*Upon completion of each CEM module, participants are awarded 6 Continuous Education (CE) clock hours, or 0.6 Continuous Education Units (CEUs). This can be used in the Certified Meeting Professional (CMP) application process.

BECOME A CEM

In the exhibitions and events industry, the Certified in Exhibition Management (CEM) designation is the premier designation offering a cutting-edge certification for exhibition industry professionals. The CEM curricula, a dependable source of specific knowledge for all individuals, emphasizes direct application to daily challenges and can be tailored to the individual needs and interests of participants. Because of the emphasis on practical knowledge, the CEM Professional Designation Learning Program is first, an educational program, and second, a certification program. The availability of online and face-to-face courses help to meet the needs, individual preferences and time commitments of CEM participants.

PREPARATION FOR BECOMING A CEM

CEM candidates are required to have at least three years of full-time experience as a practitioner in exhibition and/or event management prior to beginning the CEM Learning Program. To earn the designation, participants must complete nine of 12 courses and pass the corresponding exams within three years of beginning the program. Participants are encouraged to choose their courses based on their needs and interests. There are no mandatory courses. The three-year time frame begins at the time the first exam is passed.
